

Week of the Young Child

SUBMITTED PHOTO

The Week of the Young Child is an annual celebration sponsored by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC). The purpose of the Week of the Young Child is to focus public attention on the needs of young children and their families and to recognize the early childhood programs and services that meet those needs. The 2013 Week of the Young Child was held in late April and the theme was Early Years Are Learning Years. The Sunbeam Early Learning Center celebrated the Week of the Young Child with a Bubble Blowing Extravaganza. The children gathered in the playground laughing, running and blowing bubbles. The children enjoying the bubble blowing are Rachel Knuckles (from left), Trevor Pearcy, Caitlin Queen and Carina Prieto.
